

SEASCOUTS "ELKS" TAKE FIRST PLACE IN A REGATTA

Under Leadership of Mate Leonard Dyer, Bristol Boys Score 20 Points

CROYDON CLOSE SECOND

Sells-Perk Finishes Third In Contest After Scoring Seven Points

MILFORD, N. J., June 14—Seascouts from the Ship "Elks," Bristol, took first place in the Seascout Regatta Saturday afternoon. Under the leadership of Mate Leonard Dyer, the "Elks" scored 20 points with Croydon, Skipper Floyd Peters a close second place winner with 16 points. Sells-Perk were not very close for a third place with seven points.

The event was conducted here, and a street parade preceded the contests. Commodore Thomas B. Stockham led the parade accompanied by Scout Executive William F. Livermore, and District Commissioner Lewis H. Fetherolf. The Commodore's Guard of Honor comprised a number of officials. It included Field Commissioner Jack Burgess, Morrisville; Neighborhood Commissioner William Wainman, Croydon; Skippers Charles Burgess, Morrisville; Floyd Peters, Croydon; and Raymond Vickers, Andalusia. Field Commissioner of Senior Scouting A. B. Stiles led the Color Guard with the National and Ship Flags followed by the Seascouts in Ship formation.

Milford gave a delightful reception. Music was furnished by the Rosetto Boy Scout Bugle and Drum Corps. Mayor Orville Ziegler extended a "welcome to the visitors." Commodore Stockham replied to the greetings with an expression of admiration for the lovely community, and the warmth of the reception. The Commodore speaking to the Seascouts and Leaders said, "You are a fine looking group. Scouting breeds in all of us a higher respect for the finer things in life. Live by the Seascout ideals and we will have a finer manhood."

The Croydon Ship "The Rainbow Clipper" was awarded the Regatta Co-operative Banner for the highest percentage of seascouts and officers present. The presentation was made on behalf of Mayor Ziegler by Field Commissioner Stiles. The Ship percentage of participation was Croydon, 71%; Bristol, 67%, and Sells-Perk, 66%. Other Ships had lower percentages. High percentages of attendance are impossible with so many young men in Seascouting having positions that require their working on Saturday afternoons.

Officials assisting Scout Executive William F. Livermore in conducting the Regatta were Starter, Field Commissioner Stiles; First Judge, Skipper Raymond Vickers; Second Judge, Charles W. Hoffman, and Third Judge, Lewis H. Fetherolf. Scorer was Field Commissioner Jack Burgess.

Place winners were: canoe race—1st, Paul Keller, George Crouthamel, Sells-Perk; 2nd, Lynn Strouse, William McBride, Milford; and 3rd, William Campbell, Clifford Hagerman, Bristol. Canoe upset: 1st, William Campbell, Harry Hinman, Bristol; 2nd, Jack Mossbrock, Tryon, Croydon; and 3rd, J. Paul Keller, Donald Stoneback, Sells-Perk. Life jacket race: 1st, Winfield Herman, Bristol; 2nd, William Campbell, Bristol; and 3rd, George Crouthamel, Sells-Perk. Boat race: 1st, Tryon, Croydon; 2nd, Wilbur Albright, Bristol; and 3rd, Harry Hinman, Bristol. Rowboat race: 1st, Tryon; 2nd, Strickler; and 3rd, Wilbur Albright, Bristol.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Scouting Units provided a supper of sandwiches, pickles, ice tea and home-made cakes.

Hopkins and Muni Teamed in "The Woman I Love"

Bringing Paul Muni and Miriam Hopkins, two of the screen's foremost dramatic actors, together for the first time, RKO Radio's colorful photoplay, "The Woman I Love," will show Monday and Tuesday at the Grand Theatre, to present a brightly charged romantic drama involving two French flying comrades and a beautiful girl during the World War.

Based on "L'Equipe" by Joseph Kessel, Europe's best-selling novel about the World War, "The Woman I Love," brings for the first time to the American screen the vivid emotional situation of two French flyers, their care-free, almost hysterical abandon behind the lines, their heroic and death-defying combats over no-man's land, and their romances with the woman they left behind.

Particular interest is attached to Paul Muni's role, for Muni has won top honors for the best performance by an actor during the past season. The award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences went to Muni for his title role in "The Story of Louis Pasteur." The Minneapolis Journal's national poll of critics also resulted in a victory for Muni and a gold medal award, the ballots being cast for Muni's role in the above picture.

Scouts Demonstrate Caring For Injured

Saturday afternoon, members of the Rattlesnake Patrol of Morrisville Troop No. 3, Boy Scouts, gave a splendid demonstration of their skill in caring for the injured.

The demonstration was for the entertainment and education of the employees of the Rohm & Haas Chemical Company, at their annual safety rally. The Scouts demonstrated their ability in using various triangular bandages for numerous types of injuries, and gave a display of the method of resuscitating an "unconscious" person from a gas-filled room, applying artificial respiration.

The scouts participating were: W. Solt, E. Solt, H. Cash and A. White, led by Scoutmaster Thomas Purcell, of Morrisville.

Church Wedding Unites Two Bristol Residents

Miss Bridget Amabili, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Amabili, 918 Spring street, became the bride of Gurileo Nepo, 438 Jefferson avenue, Saturday afternoon, at three o'clock in St. Ann's Catholic Church. The Rev. Marcellino Romagnolo, rector of the church, performed the ceremony. Miss Frances Tambarello, Dorrance street, played Lohengrin's wedding march, as the bridal party entered the church.

The couple was attended by Miss Jennie Amabili, sister of the bride, and Alfred Capriotti, 438 Jefferson avenue, a cousin of the groom.

The bride was garbed in white satin, fashioned Princess style. The high neckline was trimmed with a band of seed pearls. The long sleeves slightly puffed at the shoulders, were trimmed with seed pearls at the wrists. The long skirt ended in a train. The bridal veil of tulle had a tulle headpiece trimmed with orange blossoms. Her slippers were white satin, and she carried calla lilies.

The bridesmaid wore aqua taffeta, made with short puffed sleeves and long full skirt. A small bouquet of artificial flowers trimmed the neckline and sleeves. She wore silver sandals, and a silver choker halo with aqua tulle face veil. Her bouquet was formed of pink roses.

A reception at the home of the bride followed the ceremony. About 200 attended. Previous to the ceremony, a dinner for the bridal party and immediate families, was served at the bride's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Nepo left Saturday evening for Atlantic City, N. J., where they will spend several days. Upon returning Mr. and Mrs. Nepo will reside at the home of the bride's parents.

PARISH MEETING

Tomorrow evening a parish meeting will be held in the parish house of Christ Episcopal Church, Eddington, at eight o'clock, to arrange for the fourth annual lawn fete and supper to be given under the auspices of the parish. The Sunday School picnic will be held July 17th.

HONOR BUCKS COUNTY PUBLISHER AS ONLY SURVIVING CHARTER MEMBER OF PRESS LEAGUE OF BUCKS AND MONTGOMERY COUNTIES

AMBLER, June 14—Elmer E. Alt-house, publisher of the Sellersville Herald and The Poultry Item, was honored here Saturday as the only surviving charter member of the Press League of Bucks and Montgomery counties. It was the 40th anniversary of the League and the affair was a testimonial dinner given for Mr. Alt-house at the Forrest Inn, near here.

The league was organized here 40 years ago by the late Arthur K. Thomas, who then owned the Ambler Gazette and who later owned newspapers in Lansdale, Schwenksville and Doylestown. The league is the oldest active press association of country and small city newspapers in this section of the United States.

During the business meeting, Thomas B. Stockham, mayor of Morrisville, and owner of the Morrisville Herald, was elected president for the new year to succeed the late Dennis A. O'Neill, of Norristown. Other officers elected: Vice-president, J. H. Fenstermacher, Collegeville; secretary, Marco G. Bean, Sellersville; treasurer, William G. Hower, Bryn Mawr.

Speakers included Judge Harold G. Knight and Judge J. Burnett Holl, of the Montgomery county courts; Judge Grover C. Ladner, of the Orphans' Court of Philadelphia; Elmer E. Alt-house; Charles M. Meredith, Sr., Quakertown publisher; Walter L. Sanborn, Lansdale publisher; Clifton S. Hunsicker, Norristown; A. Russell Thomas, Doylestown, son of the founder of the Press League, and others.

The executive committee appointed by the new president today includes: C. S. Hunsicker, Norristown; H. Chester Morris, Hatboro; Charles M. Meredith, Sr., Quakertown; Irvin Heywood, Conshohocken; Charles W. Baum, Perkasie; George S. Hotchkiss, Doylestown; E. A. Althouse, Sellersville; Foster C. Hillegrass, Pennsburg; Walter L. Sanborn, Lansdale.

World War Veteran Dies In U. S. Naval Hospital

John Diodati, 43, Penn street, died in the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, Saturday, after several months' illness. The deceased served in the World War and was very active in St. Ann's A. He was also a member of the Sons of Italy and Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion.

The survivors are his wife, Fannie Diodati (nee Cordisco), two children, and two sisters, Mrs. Maria Spezzano and Mrs. Annie Cordisco, all of Bristol. Relatives and friends, also members of the Sons of Italy, St. Ann's A. A., Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, are invited to the funeral from 925 Wood street, tomorrow morning at nine o'clock, with high mass in St. Ann's Church at 10 o'clock and interment in St. Mark's Cemetery under the direction of Galzerano.

FLIGHT SURGEONS RESPONSIBLE FOR PILOTS

Despite Physical Tests They Are Unable to Prevent Mental Lapses

CAUSES ARE MENTIONED

By Harold Horoux

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—(INS)—Flight surgeons are daily playing bigger roles in modern aviation's aggressive campaign for safety in the sky, a survey of commercial, military and naval air experts disclosed.

What is the role of a flight surgeon?

Let Dr. Eric Liljencrantz, flight surgeon of the Oakland airport, naval reserve, give the answer.

"A flight surgeon's duties are to pick fit flyers and to see they are kept fit," Dr. Liljencrantz said.

Dr. Liljencrantz was asked to explain pilot failures, the cause of a great number of the nation's recent air tragedies.

"Pilot failure is due to one of nine causes," he replied. "The first is total incompetence of the pilot, but this is practically unknown in American aviation."

"Second is errors of purely personal judgment and responsibility. Third is errors arising from misinterpretation of flying instruments."

"Fourth is impairment of judgment by altitude. A man may be slightly affected at as low an elevation as 12,000 feet. At about 20,000 feet altitude a man experiences oxygen hunger, sees double, may faint."

"Fifth is judgment impaired by fatigue or staleness. Staleness is an important factor. Men should be limited to a certain number of flying hours per month. A flyer can tell when he is stale when his landings are not quite up to par and by other means."

"Sixth is indecision as to whether a pilot will use instruments or contact flying. For example, a pilot may be aloft among broken clouds with imperfect radio facilities. Radios sometimes fail because of static."

"Seventh is confusion arising from inefficiency or failure of instruments, such as bad radio or broken communications with the ground."

"Eighth is errors arising from ground instruments."

BRISTOL LEGION JUNIORS WIN OPENING GAME

Take Contest From Quakertown in Initial Game Here, Saturday Afternoon

FINAL SCORE — 8 TO 6

By Louis Tomlinson

A four run rally in the sixth gave the Bristol American Legion nine a victory over Quakertown in the official opening of the local line at Landreth field on Saturday afternoon before a large crowd. The final score was 8-6.

The victory was the second in a row for the Bristol outfit which places them in the No. 2 spot in the league standings with 2 and 1.

Before the game started official opening game ceremonies were conducted with a flag raising in front of the grandstand. The flag which was hoisted to the top of the pole was the emblem received by manager Hems in commemoration of the team's championship won last year. A cool breeze blowing across the field showed the flag off as it fluttered majestically above the stands. The Legion Cadet Corps paraded around the field before the game and struck up a tune as the flag was being raised.

Manager Hems sent Carl Leinheiser to the hill to face the Quakers, while the visitors retaliated with Gross. The

Sunday Afternoon Wedding Unites Bristol Residents

St. Ann's Catholic Church was the scene of a wedding yesterday at three p. m., when Miss Rose L. DiFelice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick DiFelice, 348 Lincoln avenue, became the bride of Gene Marozzi, son of Peter Marozzi, 346 Lincoln avenue. The Rev. Marcellino Romagnolo performed the ceremony. Miss Frances Tambarello, Dorrance street, played the wedding march. Miss Yolonda DiFelice, sister of the bride, sang "The Rosary"; and Miss Clementina Passarotti, Pond street, sang "Oh Promise Me."

Attending the bride were Miss Anna May Tosti, Monroe street, maid of honor; Miss Nellie Pasculli, Lincoln avenue; Miss Josephine Gentilelli, Brook street and Miss Linda DiFelice, Lincoln avenue, sister of the bride, as bridesmaids. Best man was Joseph DiMido, Wood street. The ushers were Mario Marozzi, Lincoln avenue, brother of the groom; and Renaldo Spitali, Wilmington, Del., a cousin of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin. The sleeves were long and were puffed from the shoulder to the elbow and tight fitting to the wrist. The long skirt ended with a train. The bridal veil of tulle was trimmed with lace, had a tulle headpiece with a crown of lace, satin and rhinestones. She wore white doe-skin slippers and carried a bouquet of gardenias, roses and lillies-of-the-valley.

The maid of honor was attractive in yellow brocade lace over satin of the same tone fashioned redingote style. Yellow slippers, an off the face model lace hat of the same tone, trimmed with brown ribbon streamers, completed her outfit, and she carried yellow tea roses. The bridesmaids were attired in gowns fashioned like the maids of honor but different in color. They wore peach brocade lace over satin of the same tone, peach lace hat trimmed with brown streamers, peach slippers and carried roses blending with their dresses.

A reception was held in Mutual Aid Hall, 600 guests attending. The couple left Sunday evening for a week's honeymoon trip. They will spend a few days in New York City and the remainder of the week in Wilmington. The bride travelled in a white linen suit with red chiffon blouse, large white felt hat trimmed with red streamers, white handbag and gloves. Mr. and Mrs. Marozzi will reside at 311 Lincoln avenue.

FIRES CAUSE LOSS OF $146,000 IN BUCKS COUNTY

Firemen Received 229 Alarms During Past Year, Annual Fire Report Shows

GROOME IS RE-ELECTED

NEWTOWN, June 14—A fire loss of $146,000, and 229 alarms occurred in Bucks County during the past year, according to the annual report of Bucks County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville, presented at the quarterly meeting of the Bucks County Firemen's Association, in the high school auditorium, here, Saturday evening. No lives were lost by fire in the past 12 months, the organization members were informed through the report. Two hundred volunteer fire-fighters turned out for the meeting, and in addition to the annual and quarterly report of the fire marshal, heard a number of addresses by prominent men, elected officers for the ensuing year, and discussed fires that in some respects were unusual.

James E. Groome, Yardley, who for the past two decades has served as president of the county association, was re-named to serve in that capacity for his 21st year.

Insurance on property and contents burned during the past year totalled $117,200. The amount of value of property endangered was $409,000. The list of fires for the year showed that nine dwellings and 31 barns were destroyed, along with 11 smaller buildings.

It was brought out by Fire Marshal Stackhouse that 24 of the 31 barns destroyed by flames during the year were fired by lightning, and of this number, two were rodded. The fire loss of $146,000 for the year was compared by the association to the loss for the previous year, which amounted to $109,700. During that year 15 barns were destroyed.

One point brought out in the report was that on the 11th of July, last year, 11 barns were burned during one night, having been struck by lightning. Thirteen days later, or on July 24th, seven barns were struck by lightning. The fire loss, attributed to lightning during the past year, is $86,000.

The report for the past quarter was also given by Mr. Stackhouse, for consideration by the county firemen. Forty-two fires were reported throughout the county, with a loss of $23,000, and property endangered being $94,700. The amount of insurance carried on these properties was $12,400. In this three-month period seven barns and two houses were destroyed.

The men discussed at length a slight fire which occurred at the upper end of the county during March, and also a fire near Trevoise Saturday morning.

Theatre Guild's Season Opens at Andalusia

Tonight at 8.30 the King's Theatre Guild will present its initial offering of the summer season at King Hall, Andalusia, when "For Pete's Sake," a three-act farce, will be given its first performance.

The guild has been active during the past few weeks in preparing a new set for their show which takes place in a small college town.

It is a hilarious farce centered around the old adage, "When the cat's away, the mice will play."

Peter Pepperdine is forced to remain at home and spend the summer at his aunt's cottage where he is to be tutored in the rudiments of Latin while his aunt takes a long delayed trip to the Holy Land. Peter, under the close surveillance of the college dean and Muggsy Murglethorpe, a college grind, has all but given up hope for an eventful summer when Mrs. Georgiana Clarkton, accompanied by her two daughters, Nadine and Peggy, decide to rent the Pepperdine cottage for the season.

The fun begins when Peter and his chums pose as the servants of the house and are regarded as "fixturs" which go along with the house. Complications become more involved and humorous when the boys fall in love with Peggy and Nadine and the ghost of old grandfather Pepperdine joins the group. Just how the situation rights itself will prove an evening's entertainment.

Those in the cast are Daisy Barnett, Dorothy Settled, John Ferguson, George Neff, Walter Zelinsky, Archie Lummis, Hilda Leversidge, Eleanor Gallagher, Dorothea Wenner, Mary Hufford, Ernest Orazzi and William Hufford, Director, William Patberg. The play will be repeated tomorrow night.

FLAG DAY PROGRAM IS PARTICIPATED IN BY EIGHTH GRADE

John Leslie Kilcoyne is The Speaker at Exercises in High School, Today

LEGION MEDALS GIVEN

Sylvia Singer and Robert Bauroth Recipients; Pupils Give Numbers

Flag Day was fittingly observed at Bristol high school this morning, when eighth grade students participated in a program. Features of the exercises, to which the eighth grades were witnesses, were awarding of the American Legion medals, a flag day address by Attorney John Leslie Kilcoyne, and numbers by the students.

Recipients of the American Legion medals were Miss Sylvia Singer and Robert R. Bauroth.

Miss Effie Watson, principal of the Harriman grade school, led the fore-part of the program and introduced Joseph Schreiber, Americanism officer of Robert W. Bracken Post, 382, American Legion, who presented members of the post and Auxiliary who took part in the morning's program.

Percy G. Ford led the assemblage in patriotic songs, and the students sang lustily. Miss Watson led in the responsive reading.

The students' portion of the program occupied the first part of the allotted time for the flag day exercises, and loyalty to the flag and to the United States of America was the keynote. Miss Violet Sperling, a member of the faculty, outlined the program, and the announcer was Miss Anna Spezzano, and the stage aide, Calvin Hutchinson.

In making the presentation of the medal to the outstanding boy student of the eighth grade, Mr. Ford told that the American Legion presents the medal "to encourage and urge you to live up to certain precepts and qualifications that make for good womanhood, good manhood, and good citizenship." He told that the qualities of honor, scholarship, service, leadership, Americanism and courage enter into the awarding of the medals. After urging the boy recipient, Robert Bauroth, to continue to hold fast to the precepts for which the medal stands, Mr. Ford reminded that although all should be willing to give their lives for their country if need be, the prime motive in each heart should be to work for peace. "Keep peace in your hearts," he added.

Mrs. Arthur F. Zug, secretary of the American Legion Auxiliary, Robert W. Bracken Post, presented the girls' medal to Miss Sylvia Singer, and extended congratulations.

In his flag day address to the students, Mr. Kilcoyne had this to say: "That flag is the symbol of the noblest self-sacrifice. It stands for freedom of thought, freedom of speech and freedom of worship. . . . In this great, free country, men and women can rise from the most abject poverty to positions of trust and power." He recalled the rise of Garfield: "Little did he think as he followed the mules on the tow-path that he would one day become President of this great country." And of U. S. Grant, Mr. Kilcoyne reminded: "Little did he think as he plowed the fields on his father's farm that he would one day lead mighty forces of troops."

Turning his eyes toward the flag, Mr. Kilcoyne concluded: "Love that flag; cherish it, wrap it around your heart. Be true to its traditions. And if the time ever comes, but I hope it won't, be willing to lay down your lives for it, if needs be."

The pupils' portion of the morning program included: "Your Flag and My Flag," John Galt; "Old Glory's Message," Betty Somers, Dorothy Worthington, Ruth Shire, Evelyn Wilkinson; piano solo, Grace Downing; pantomime, "America," Sylvia Singer, dramatist; Anna Sharp, reader; Lucy Fenton, pianist; reading, "America and the World War," with Margaret Rathke as the reader, and the following participating: Ronald Argust, Donald Wanamaker, Viola Castor, Harry Waltz, Norman Vandegrist, Joseph Burton, Carrie Kishpanag, Hazel Book, Vincent Baccardo, Kathryn Zachut

BIRTHDAY OF THE FLAG

Americans who salute the Stars and Stripes today should reflect with pride that our flag is older than any national banner in Europe. That fact implies the stability of the United States government during the long stretch of history, which has seen empires, kingdoms and dynasties swept away, boundaries changed and political systems overturned by revolutions and wars. Concurrent with that stability has been a co-ordinate and accelerated accretion of power and wealth, until the flag represents a nation the Old World regards as a miracle.

Each citizen sheltered and armored by those protective folds is called upon by Flag Day to sum up in his own mind what the starry banner means to him in his own person. It is for every man, woman and child within the jurisdiction of the United States the indisputable guarantee of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It means equality of opportunity and equality of rights at home, and a protection against oppression and injustice abroad, which none may dare to violate with impunity. All that is asked in return is loyalty to this enduring symbol of a government that rests upon the freely given consent of the governed.

Flag Day should be the occasion for a fervent renewal of self-consecration to the ennobling duties of patriotism.

ECONOMY!

As part of the plan to reorganize Federal executive departments, the President proposes to transfer certain functions having to do with conservation from the Department of Agriculture to the Department of the Interior. The name of the Department of the Interior would be changed to the Department of Conservation.

As might have been expected, this has provoked opposition from the Department of Agriculture and has secured active support from the Department of the Interior. The quarrel of the politicians probably doesn't much matter but there are good reasons for taxpayers to study the question.

The proposal was made as an economy measure. Those intimate with methods in Washington say that in reality it will set up a wholly new structure with full capacity for unlimited growth and extension, while it will leave in the Department of Agriculture the torn remnants of conservation service that will patch itself up and regain its former size and expansiveness. The seeds of this twin growth are in the provision that "conservation and development of private lands" remain a function of the Department of Agriculture, while "to enforce the conservation laws with regard to public lands" becomes the duty of the new department. Numerous other near duplications are recommended in the plan.

In the Congressional hearings strenuous opposition to the change has been voiced by the Grange and other farm organizations and by the American Forestry Association, and many other groups interested in conservation. It will be well to continue discussion until the end of the Congressional session. Economy will not be secured by setting up new departments of Government while governmental expenses are far out-running income.

But you'll notice that no method of playing politics shocks the other side unless it is making votes.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Dec. 2, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The Delaware River is filled with floating ice.

Dr. Little Smith, of Newtown, has discontinued her visits to Bristol.

Martin Blanche, who had two of his fingers crushed several weeks ago, died of lockjaw last Sunday.

John Dugan fell in the hold of a canal boat last Tuesday, and broke his collar bone. Dr. Groom attended to his injuries.

On Friday night last some thieves broke into the new residence of Horace Beatty on Radcliffe street, and stole some carpenter's tools and a box of plumber's tools.

The anniversary of the Baptist Sabbath School was held in the church on last Thursday (Thanksgiving) evening, with a large and very attentive audience. . . . The main feature, and with an entirely new one for Bristol, was the pulpit platform which was handsomely decorated with laurel, mosses, hanging baskets, birds in cages, banners, etc., and presented a striking appearance. In the center of a pretty rockery was a beautiful 16 jet revolving fountain kindly loaned and placed in position by Mr. R. Hepworth, of Hepworth & Collins, and being the first in Bristol, created no little wonderment as to where the water came from. . . .

We are becoming so accustomed to the various conveniences which are enjoyed in this age that we are apt to underrate their value. A glance at them will have a tendency perhaps to enhance our appreciation of them. Most of these are enjoyed by the residents of Bristol to as great an extent as they are in Philadelphia or elsewhere. Our water works, as far as the mains extend, place within our reach those facilities for hot and cold water in our homes, which contribute very much to their comfort. We are supplied with gas by which our streets are lighted, and our mills have that light which enable them to run after night, and our residences made light and cheerful without trouble to the inmates. Our travelling accommodations are first class. Trains almost every hour leave the depot for Philadelphia or New York, and during the season, first class steam-boats are crowded with passengers, going or returning from the city. Next Spring a new steamboat, unsurpassed in its appointments for the convenience and safety of its passengers, will be added to the three passenger boats that now daily make their trips to Philadelphia and return. The telegraph accommodations are excellent. The Farmers National Bank, a sound institution, whose officers and their assistants are eminently trustworthy, courteous and capable, afford the privileges which our citizens need in a financial direction. Several expressmen, in addition to the New Jersey Express Company, supply a need of great advantage to our people. Our schools, both public and private, are excellent. Churches of almost all denominations are in our midst. Our stores, mechanics, artists, physicians, and many other conveniences, render a residence here pleasant, and in addition to all this, we have suburban advantages here that are not to be enjoyed in the city. We are surrounded by green fields, good drives, the broad and beautiful Delaware flows gently by our town—furnishing healthy recreation to all who wish to enjoy boating in Summer, or skating in Winter. Thus at our very doors are both the conveniences of the city, with all the privileges of the country. These things compared with the inconveniences of a few years ago connected with a residence in Bristol, certainly indicate the great advances made.

TRAVEL OUTFITS SHOULD COMBINE SMARTNESS WITH PRACTICAL SIDE

By JEAN ALLEN

International Illustrated News Writer

HOLLYWOOD—While this is rather the mid-season for designers, who are already considering plans for their autumn shows, midday is mostly concerned with her vacation wardrobe and stocking the various items necessary for a cruise or resort wear.

One of the most difficult outfits to select is a costume suitable for traveling, one which is practical and yet distinctive. If too fussy it won't hold up under the punishment of a day on the road, yet must not sacrifice smartness, either, because few feel like stopping for lunch or tea in an outfit which is too ordinary.

Anita Louise, charming blonde movie star, has made a happy choice in her selection of the ideal summer traveling costume. This outfit is a simple printed crepe frock, yet one which has its own particular distinction. The jaunty bow a laing down the front and belt covered with the same material add to its charm. A short wool swaggar jacket is comfortable for traveling and provides the necessary warmth when evenings are cool.

Field Flowers for Trimming

A black straw with fringed brim, black gloves and bag complete the costume and complement her striking blonde hair.

One of the perkier bonnets seen on Hollywood boulevards of late is that sported by charming Mary Carlisle. Field flowers are all the rage for trimming chapeaux and have been used to admirable effect here. There is a skull-cap of white straw with a pleated visor over the eyes, while a charming combination of colorful posies serve as smart decoration. The same flowers riot colorfully over the black crepe frock the star is wearing.

Kay Francis more than lives up to her reputation as the smartest dress of the movie colony's celebrities in the clever sports spectator outfit she is wearing. The gay plaid swaggar jacket provides a colorful contrast to the simple linen frock.

Scarf knotted in Eton fashion, a soft white hat with ribbon of dark red, moccasin shoes and white bag and gloves are the accessories.

Another factor which is influencing the new styles is the Paris exposition, noticeable especially in its effect on the new French models. They are borrowing from the odd and unusual on exhibit along the banks of the Seine and working into their designs much of the romantic and colorful, making ample use of embroidery and other decorative motifs.

One issue on which most of the stylists seem to be suspending judgment is the length of the skirt for autumn. It remains to be seen whether the dance frocks will be floor-length or above the ankle. One clever model gets around the difficulty by an uneven hem which hikes up sharply in front and sweeps to the floor in back.

CHAPTER XXXV

Jonathan was waiting when she came in.

"For heaven's sake where've you been?" he grumbled, frowning his long legs and rising from a comfortable chair by the fire. "I've bored your mother to death and eaten all the doughnuts in the house. What's up? You look pretty darned severe."

He put his arms around her, kissed her cold lips, her colder cheek. The lips warmed under his, Rose, disengaging herself, laughed. She tossed her tongue on the table and flung her heavy coat on a chair. "What's up?"

"Why?"

"Oh, I've just been to see John Rogers—" She stopped and sat down on the divan. She said, "Never mind that. Come over here and tell me all you've been doing."

But Jonathan's curiosity was aroused. He said, standing over her, "Here, make a clean breast of it, I thought you'd been going around muttering to yourself lately. What's the trouble?"

"Nothing." But she had gone too far. She'd have to satisfy him somehow. She said, lightly, "It's just that obnoxious Dexter youngster. I couldn't pass him so I flunked him. Besides, he's been raising all sorts of ructions in class and school generally. Mr. Martin won't do anything about it. I hoped that Rogers would. But I might have known better."

"He ought to be fired," pronounced Jonathan.

"Who—Martin, Rogers or Larry?"

"All three," said Jonathan firmly. "I'm inclined to agree with you, but just for the moment I'm concentrating on Larry. Not that it does any good."

"Oh, well," said Jonathan easily. "You'll soon be out of it. It can't be too soon for me," he added, sitting down beside her.

Rose smiled, and then frowned. He asked, "Why the scowl, darling, if it doesn't become you?" and she replied, smoothing out her brow with laudable haste. "Oh, just men in general. You're as bad as Martin and Rogers, in one way. And I dare say everyone else would agree with you. Let it slide, take the easier way, shut your eyes to anything you don't happen to like. Let Larry Dexter graduate, he only has a few months anyway, and in a hundred years it won't make any difference to anyone," she concluded breathlessly.

They were alone in the living room. Mrs. Ward having shipped away almost as soon as Rose arrived. Jonathan raised an eyebrow and quirked a finger. "Stand up," he commanded.

She rose, more docile than she appeared, and he pulled her down on his knee.

He said, "I hate like thunder to have anything bother you. If you want me to, I'll ride that young man out of town on a rail, plus the usual tar and feathers."

Rose laughed helplessly. She said, "That would help matters a lot and be especially good for your practice." She ran her fingers through his hair, which always irritated him, and he howled and battered it down again with the palms of his hands. "That's one habit I'll have to break you of," he threatened, and glared at her.

"Mustn't end sentences with a preposition," Rose told him. "Now, let's forget Larry and everything. Tell me about yourself."

"Very quiet day," he answered obediently, "one sacro iliac, one quinsy, one pneumonia . . . and oh, yes, Sally. I've been up to see her."

"What's wrong with her?"

"Heavy cold. She'll be all right though. Phil will be in evidence. She said he'd gone to New York. Do you know, I think the Dexter house is even more depressing than the Sutton mansion. All it lacks is hair wreaths and a photograph of Aunt Mary's third little boy in his coffin."

Rose shuddered. "Jon, how can you?"

"Oh, I assure you I've seen such," he said cheerfully.

"Sally in bed . . ."

"Yes. She must feel pretty low or she'd never consent to stay here. Has a slight temperature, aches . . . the grippe, you know, cold and plenty of it. She looked as if she'd been crying but then, . . ."

"Than carefully, it may have been the cold."

"I'll go see her tomorrow after church," said Rose. She stirred, announced, "I'm too heavy," and slipped from his knee to sit close beside him. Presently she said slowly, "Sometimes I wish it would always be like this, just you and I, close together, quiet, not saying much, just aware of one another. But it won't be. We'll be like other people, we'll be irritable and intolerant, we'll quarrel and become reconciled, we'll find that common, everyday life blunts, inevitably and imperceptibly, the keen edge of our delight." To her astonishment she was almost crying. Her sight blurred and her throat thickened. She went on huskily, "But every so often there will be a moment just like this, and we'll know that being together is all that matters."

"Jonathan's big hand rumbled her hair, his long fingers were drawn from her temples to her throat. He said, moved, "I ought to contradict you. I ought to say we won't be like other people. But I couldn't fool you, Rose. I suppose we will be. But we'll love each other, and that's the important thing. Look—if life were all a sort of freight dream, with no antagonisms, and no obstacles and no alterations, it wouldn't be life. It would be a pleasant sort of nothingness, a suspension between two worlds. Pretty cloying. Sure, you'll be irritable and so will I. We'll fight and we'll cry and we'll swear—at least you'll cry and I'll swear."

"Don't be too sure," said Rose lazily, "I may do the swearing."

Jonathan grinned. He said, "Whatever comes we'll take it in our stride. I'll be late to dinner ten times out of nine. You'll bear with me for a while and then it will get under your skin. You won't be able to convince yourself that you're a marvelous life complementing the life of a busy humanitarian after the first few months. You'll just be a doctor's wife who will not be able to see the sixth roast burnt to a crisp with equanimity. And after telephone calls as a sort of accolade setting me apart from other men. You'll wish my patients were in Timbuctoo. But Lord, Rose, if it were made too easy for us, we wouldn't like it! It wouldn't be life and it wouldn't be marriage!"

"Jon," she said, "you're such a bright side." She pulled his tall beard down to her and kissed him.

"And now," she said severely, "you kindly shut up and look at the fire with me and hold my hand and just be quiet for a little while? Because in ten minutes by the clock, mother's coming in to ask us if we want a nice hot drink of cocoa."

She had forgotten Larry Dexter.

The following morning after church Jonathan drove her up to Rogers'. He left her downstairs in the amazing paneled hall, tastefully set off with the mounted carcasses of unhappy fish, small birds, and the reproachful glass-eyed heads of stags. Rose, waiting, wondered idly why on earth she had elected to live here instead of at her father's until the house she and Phil were building on the Dexter property was ready. Mrs. Dexter slid through the hall like some vague and unelectric eel and threw her a mechanical greeting and a fixed bright smile which displayed her superb denture. And presently, Rose, looking up from a contemplation of a gasping fish snared in Floridian waters, was aware that Larry had come silently through the archway leading from the living room to the hall and was surveying her, his hands in his pockets.

She said, "Hello, Larry, I was waiting to see Sally. Jonathan's up with her now."

Larry grinned. He said, "Yeah, I know. If you can't get a doctor one way, you can get him another. I think Sally's in for quite a spell of invalidism—Phil's gone to New York. They had a battle. You know how that is. We knew, all right, we could hear them all over the house."

Rose said, distastefully, "I don't believe I care to hear about it."

"You wouldn't," he said amiably and came a step closer to her. "Look here," he told her, "it won't do you any good to flunk me. Oh, I know, Mr. Martin had me on the carpet—in a nice way." He spoke with an incredible miming falsetto which was completely a caricature of the principal's voice, "and gave me a little warning." But it didn't take. If you think you're going to get me kicked out of your little tuppenny hap-penny school—"

"Larry," Rose began sharply, rising, but just as she did so Jonathan came running down the stairs. He said, "Go on up, Rose, Sally wants to see you. Don't go too near her . . . remember. I'll drop back for you. Have a couple of calls to make. I won't be long."

He nodded to Larry, smiled at her, and went on to the door. Rose looking briefly at Larry, thought better of it, and walked past him to the stairway. Mounting it, her hand on the rail she thought, I didn't come off very well in that encounter. But what was there to say? I couldn't get into a row with the boy in his own house . . .

But now her mind was made up. She would go over the superintendent's head and make her report directly to the Board. She thought, furiously: To think I was such a coward—trying to convince myself that it would be better to drop it!

Sally was lying in the big four-poster, with a soft Angora bed jacket bordered with white fur about her shoulders. She looked bad Rose thought, smiling at her from the doorway. Sally said, stifled,

"Take a pew. Not too close. Kim warned me. Doesn't want you to catch my cold."

Rose sat down in a chintz-covered wing chair. Sally sneezed into a handkerchief. "What are you looking so sober about?" she demanded.

"Just came from church."

"Is that how it affects you? You looked mad enough to chew nails. I bet you ran into my dear little brother-in-law on the way up."

Rose flushed. She said steadily, "I saw him—in the hall."

"I suppose so," agreed Sally, regarding her steadily. "I've no doubt he told you that Phil and I threw things. I'll certainly be glad to get out of this house. Sorry now we didn't go home, but Phil was set on the Dexter manor. Thought it more fitting. I suppose. And look here, you needn't be evasive about Larry to me, I've learned plenty about him since I came to live here. But Phil won't hear a word against him—much less his mother and father. If he ends up on the gallowes," remarked Sally cheerfully, "they have only themselves to blame."

"I'm sorry you're laid up," Rose began and Sally laughed hoarsely.

"Such a subtle way to change the topic," she suggested, "and hasn't it been cold lately? Although I don't believe this winter will be as severe as last." She laughed again. "You and Kim think you're pretty smart."

She said abruptly, "as if the whole town didn't know!"

Rose said, "We've told some people. . . . I—I didn't want a formal announcement."

"You might have told me," said Sally. She widened her eyes at the other girl. "Scruples?" she asked.

"You didn't really believe all that nonsense last summer . . . ? I was just having a little fun with you, that was all."

"Of course," Rose murmured.

AUTOGRAPH QUILT IS PRESENTED PRESIDENT BY SOCIAL CIRCLE

During the past week, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Weik, Jefferson avenue, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. On Sunday morning after church, the Social Circle of the First Baptist Church gathered in the Sunday School room and presented Mr. and Mrs. Weik with an autograph quilt. Mrs. Weik is president of the Social Circle.

The color of the quilt is orchid and peach. There were 12 blocks containing 86 autographs; these were embroidered in orchid on the peach squares. The center block had on it: "To Sarah Weik, 25th Wedding Anniversary, from the Social Circle."

Eighty-six persons had a part in the gift, and in future years the Weiks can look back and see who were affiliated with the society in 1937.

Mr. and Mrs. Weik and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gould were bidden good-bye and God-speed as they leave today for a tour to the West. Mrs. Gould is vice-president of the Social Circle.

Fires Cause Loss Of $146,000 In Bucks County

When a house owned by an estate was slightly damaged. This fire, it was stated, was probably of incendiary origin. It was discovered by the occupants of the property at 2:30 a. m., and on the arrival of the Trevose Fire Company only small damage had been caused.

New pieces of apparatus have been purchased by four fire companies during the year, these including Yardley, Trevose, Warrington and Falls Township. The engine of the Yardley Fire Company was placed on display, Saturday evening, and was inspected by all in attendance.

A number of men addressed the gathering, subjects pertaining to various phases of fire-prevention and fire-fighting. A representative of the New Jersey fire wardens department was present, and told of work with forest fires.

Among the speakers were: Garfield Barber, Shippensburg; David Brotherton, Burlington County, N. J.; James Barrett, of the Interstate Fair Grounds, Trenton, N. J.; Mr. Beal, president of the Mercer County Firemen's Association, N. J.

In addition to Mr. Groome who was renamed president, the following officers were chosen Saturday evening: Vice-presidents, Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; Lloyd Crouthamel, Dublin; Raymond Strunk, Quakertown; secretary, Clinton Rife, Silverdale; treasurer, Louis C. Leedom, Yardley; financial secretary, William Stauffer, Sellersville; fire marshal, William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville; chaplain, the Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, Eddington; trustees, William Hamilton, New Hope; Winfield S. Cox, Morrisville; Henry Myers, Sellersville.

Representatives of the Bucks County Rescue Squad, of Croydon, were present, and submitted a report of work carried out. This squad has been affiliated with the county firemen's organization for several years. The report showed that the ambulance and other equipment of the squad had been placed at the disposal of and made use of by the firemen of the county on numerous occasions. The squad representatives assured that the ambulance, first-aid equipment, etc., is available at all times for those who require such.

The firemen's association decided to purchase additional postal savings bonds, as an investment for the organization. The financial report showed that the association is in splendid condition. The firemen also discussed the securing of a charter.

Approximately 75 women were present at the session of the Ladies' Auxiliary, and this group served lunch to the firemen at the conclusion of the two business meetings.

Cooked Salad Dressing

One-half teaspoon mustard, one and one-half teaspoons each salt and sugar, one and one-half teaspoons flour, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, few grains cayenne, one egg, one cup milk, four tablespoons vinegar, one and one-half tablespoons shortening.

Mix mustard, salt, sugar, flour, paprika and cayenne. Add the beaten egg and mix well. Add milk and vinegar and cook over hot water until thick. Add shortening and stir until melted.

For a whipped cream dressing, lightly fold in one-half cup whipped cream to foundation recipe. For a snappy salad add three tablespoons prepared horseradish to the foundation recipe. For a tarragon dressing, use two tablespoons vinegar and add two tablespoons tarragon vinegar.

EDGELY BRAVES SPLIT THEIR WEEK-END BILL

A home run from the bat of Leo Hibbs gave the Edgely Braves a split of their week-end double-header, winning Saturday from Kaplan's, 4-3, in ten innings, and losing to the O'Donnell's, 10-5, yesterday. Both games were played in Trenton.

Hibbs' four-master came in the tenth frame to break a 3-3 deadlock. It was a tremendous drive to centerfield and broke up a hurling match between Wils Holland and Johnny Mayer. Holland allowed the Jersey club but six hits and fanned five batters. He collected three of his club's eleven hits to lead the hitters of the afternoon.

LANDRETH NINE LOSES TO WISSINOMING, 7 TO 3

The Landreth Seeds dropped another ball game yesterday afternoon. This time the winning club was the Wissinoming nine of the Quaker City League and they had an easy time in downing the Landrethmen, 7-3.

The Farmers continued their loose playing and were much weaker at the plate. Several of the Wissies' hits were so because of slow fielding and at the plate the seedlets looked as if they couldn't hit the side of a barn. They were popping meek infield flies all afternoon.

BILLY WINN TO RETURN TO EASTERN SPEED WARS

Billy Winn, of Detroit, diminutive speedway and dirt track racing ace, will return to eastern speed wars this season and will open his campaign at Langhorne on Saturday afternoon, June 19, Joe Dawson, zone supervisor of the AAA contest board has just announced.

For ten years blonde Billy Winn was the scourge of dirt track racing in the East, winning nearly every event in which he entered. His 50 mile battle with Kelly Pettito at Langhorne two years ago still remains a high-light of the thrill sport.

During the last two years Winn has confined most of his racing activities to the Indianapolis speedway, national championship events and road racing. His spectacular driving over the Roosevelt race way course last fall startled the European entrants who sought to have him barred! In one season he won two 100 mile national championship races, the first at Springfield, Ill., and the second at Syracuse.

According to Winn's official entry he will bring his Miller racing car East with him, a single-seated machine in which he will use the same motor that powered his Indianapolis mount. It is considered the last word in modern racing equipment.

Racing fans recalling the spectacular driving of Winn during his Eastern campaigns will welcome his return to Langhorne but his entry brings no joy to some fifty race drivers who must face his competition. Not only will Winn encounter nearly all of the men who challenged him in the championship title a few years ago, but there will be a strong representation of Indianapolis speedway stars on hand to question his claims.

The return of Winn to eastern automobile racing, coupled with the invasion of such speedway notables as Mauri Rose, the national champion, George Connor, Bill Devore and Ted Horn, Indianapolis money winners, gives to Langhorne the greatest field of drivers that has ever assembled on the historic Bucks County course. All of the Eastern stars, including Ben Shaw who established the present world's mile record at Langhorne last month, will be back to face the invading stars.

Flight Surgeons Responsible For Pilots

"Ninth is acts of God, such as lightning."

Pilots are carefully tested, Dr. Liljencrantz said, for their ability to see clearly, both within the control cabin and without at the distant land to one side, color blindness, binocular function, ocular balance, convergence and night blindness.

Color blindness, he explained, is another important test because a pilot might have to distinguish, in making an emergency landing, between a yellow stubble field and green covered land.

Test predictions as to whether an applicant is temperamentally fit to be a pilot turn out about 80 per cent correct, Dr. Liljencrantz said.

ex-Bristol High hurler proceeded to mow the Up-County team down in the first inning for six frames but blew up in the seventh and was driven to cover. Bristol, however, held an 8-1 lead previous to that time so he received credit for the victory even though he had to be aided by Vance Betz. Leinheiser had allowed exactly two hits and one run up until the fatal 7th, then two walks, an error, a fielder's choice, and two straight hits spelled fairs for him as Quakertown pushed over 5 big runs to put them within striking distance of Bristol's lead.

Vance Betz, who relieved Leinheiser in the big 7th gave up one hit and a walk, then settled down to retire the next eight batters in a row to save the game.

Gross, the visitor's starting selection on the hill, gave way to Smoll during the local's winning rally which netted them four runs in the sixth. Up to that time he was blasted for 7 hits and 4 runs; but an error, and two consecutive infield hits which loaded the bases was the signal for his departure. Smoll entered upon the scene then and after a walk, fielder's choice, and another hit, he managed to get the side out and finish the game.

Tonight Bristol will travel to Morrisville where they will engage the Legion from that borough. Naturally the visitors will seek their third straight victory with Stanley Dick as Hen's probable mound choice. Game will start at 6.15.

BOOK EXTRA BOUT FOR ST. ANN'S ARENA TONIGHT

An extra bout will be presented to the amateur boxing fans of this vicinity tonight at the weekly boxing show conducted by the St. Ann's Athletic Association in its arena, Wood and Franklin streets. Eleven bouts are scheduled with the approval of the Middle Atlantic District of the A. A. U.

Match-Maker Sammy Moffo has arranged some first-class bouts which, if they come up to expectations, will have the fans on the edge of their seats all evening. Fighters from seven various clubs have been invited to participate in the bouts tonight.

Heading the top of the card will be Tony Puccio, 120-pound St. Ann's boy, who will face Angelo Ambrosano, hard-hitting right-hander from the Corsac A. C.

Moffo also signed a hard bout for "Hokey" Leighton, Rescue Squad, to meet Joseph Marcone, Pen-Mar.

A new face in St. Ann's fighting tows will also be introduced to the fans. He is Tony Pete, who has been training diligently for the past month and now wants an opportunity to strut his stuff. He is matched with Roy Sutton, Pen-Mar, in a 135-pound class bout.

Sammy Sindora, St. Ann's, meets a stiff foe in Michael DeStefano, Pen-Mar.

Louis Spino, Arena, has Benny Arizzi, Seymour, as his foe; Jimmy Leferts, Daggert, meets Basil Troffe, Corsac; Tony Bucci, Pen-Mar, fights Russell Johnson, Sigma Theta; Tony Petrecilli, Pen-Mar, faces George Williams, Sigma Theta; Pete Cordella, Pen-Mar, tackles Mario Perrotta, Corsac; John Gant, Sigma Theta, and Leon Swartz, Newsboys' A. C., meet; Nathaniel Hines and Willis Collins, East Side, are the heavyweights for tonight.

According to Match-Maker Sammy Moffo, this card will surpass by far the others that have been conducted here, and the largest crowd of the season is anticipated.

First bout goes on at 8.30 o'clock, sharp.

Howard W. Ambler Dies in Hospital

DOYLESTOWN, June 14—Howard W. Ambler, 49, prominent resident of this borough who for the past 12 years was connected with the sales contract department of the Philadelphia Electric Company's local office, died Friday in Abington Memorial Hospital, to which place he was taken suffering from an aggravated stomach condition. Pneumonia set in two days ago and Ambler grew weaker in spite of several blood transfusions given by veterans of the World War living in Doylestown. The deceased was a veteran and member of the American Legion.

The survivors include the widow, Mrs. Luelle Ambler, of East State street, and one daughter, Luelle, a student in the Doylestown public school.

Mr. Ambler was born in North Wales, the son of Fannie and Theodore Ambler. For more than 20 years he was affiliated with the Philadelphia office of the Reading Coal and Iron Company. He was a former member of the Rotary Club of Doylestown and a member of the Doylestown Moose Lodge and the William E. Hare Post No. 206, American Legion, of Lansdale.
